

Earth, Wind and Fire

Cape Farewell Late Night

Friday at Whitechapel

11 May 2007, 7-11pm

Cape Farewell presents a night of new songs, performances, artworks and information prompted by the urgency of climate change.

Curated by Kathy Barber, Vicky Long and Ali MacGillp this event is part of Whitechapel's Late Night Fridays series. See the running order for scheduled performance times - all other works run throughout the evening.

Tim Graves presents The Plight of the Waders, mapping the future landscape of climate-change London

Climate Scientist Prof. Mark Maslin of the Environmental Change Research Centre, UCL is on hand and ready to engage in up-to-the-minute debate

Adrian Lee invites you to vitalise the otherwise wasted energy from a 'stepper' machine

Hannah Bird and Lottie Leedham give you the Everyone is Downstream Bar

Max Eastley's sound composition Arctic permeates the stairway

Because You Don't Deserve This, a 16mm film by Nick Edwards (on a 5.5min loop) returns us to the Arctic

Solar-powered lightboxes by Kathy Barber feature texts by Jody Barton

Rhiannon Armstrong will ask for your help to illuminate her globe-shaped costume

Explore the Resource Area with books selected by the artists and contribute to the Information Exchange Board

Artwork by graphic artist Jody Barton (including the works pictured left)

Cape Farewell brings artists, scientists and educators together to address and raise awareness about climate change. Created by David Buckland, Cape Farewell has led three expeditions into the wild, beautiful and icy High Arctic, a place for artistic inspiration and scientific enquiry. In September 2007 Cape Farewell launches two further voyages to the Arctic, taking an international group of young people, artists and scientists to Svalbard, Greenland and Iceland. In 2008 the Barbican Art Gallery will tour the critically acclaimed exhibition, Cape Farewell: Art & Climate Change internationally and in partnership with the British Council, Cape Farewell is building a range of artistic collaborations worldwide. From August 2007 Cape Farewell will be based at the newly re-opened Southbank Centre and in 2007/08 the Southbank and Eden Project will be Cape Farewell's major project partners.
